STATEMENTS ON INTRODUCED BILLS AND JOINT RESOLUTIONS

By Mr. HOLLINGS (for himself, Mr. BREAUX, Ms. SNOWE, Mrs. BOXER, Mr. GRAHAM of South Carolina, Mr. CHAFEE and Mr. REED):

S. 1798. A bill to provide for comprehensive fire safety standards for upholstered furniture, mattresses, bedclothing, and candles; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. HOLLINGS. Mr. President, this Congress has worked towards providing the brave men and women who fight fires the funds and material to better perform their crucial tasks. We all saw brave members of the fire service sacrifice their lives to rescue people from the World Trade Center. But we do not see firefighters in every town in America risking their lives every day to save lives and homes from the ravages of fire. I lost a home to a severe fire, and I saw the herculean efforts of my local firefighters to save it. Too many people die or suffer grievous injuries from home fires. During a recent visit with the firefighters from my home State of South Carolina, they told me that in spite of their best efforts, nearly 40 people die each year from home fires.

In my conversations with fire services across the country, I hear two things. First, the departments need funds for equipment and training. With the Firefighter Investment and Response Enhancement grant program, we are on our way to getting these people the resources they need to do their job. There is more work to do, but this grant program is a start. Second, and most troubling, is that the best-equipped and best-trained fire departments cannot out race most home fires.

A recent FEMA-commissioned study from the National Fire Protection Association reported that 65 percent of our fire departments cannot respond within 4 minutes of receiving an alarm. The fire that engulfed the nightclub in Rhode Island is an unfortunate example of what we are dealing with in regard to fire fighting and fire safety. The fire department arrived within 5 minutes of the fire starting, which is exceptionally fast, yet 100 people died that night. Most of them died within 2 minutes of the fire starting.

Addressing the equipment and training of the fire service is one very important component to fighting fires. We've begun to address this need in recent years with the Firefighter Investment and Response Enhancement (FIRE) Act, which I co-sponsored and helped move through the Commerce Committee in 2000. This established the FIRE grants that have helped local fire departments across the country acquire the equipment and training to improve their operations. I've also worked with Senator CHRIS DODD, D-CT, on the Staffing for Adequate Fire and Emergency Response (SAFER) Act, which would provide the funding to hire 75,000 new firefighters. The legislation is modeled on the success of the COPS program.

But the soundproofing materials that fed that fire in Rhode Island are identical to ingredients used in furniture in our homes. Indeed, the majority of fire deaths occur in homes. So we must address the underlying causes of home fires, the fuel that feeds them. We need to reduce the ignition potential of household items.

In 1998, residential fires killed 2,660 Americans, and injured 15,260. Senior citizens over 70 and children under 5 are at the greatest risk of dying in a fire; children under the age of 10 accounted for 17 percent of fire-related deaths in 1996. Fires also cause $3.5 billion in residential property loss each year.

It is in this context that Senators JOHN BREAUX, D-LA, OLYMPIA SNOWE, R-ME, BARBARA BOXER, D-CA, BYRON DORGAN, D-ND, LINDSEY GRAHAM, R-SC and I introduce the American Home Fire Safety Act. The Act would establish minimum combustibility standards for mattresses, upholstered furniture, candles and bed clothing. American manufacturers already have cost-effective technology to improve the safety of these products, and are ready to make products that meet the higher standards.

The United States Consumer Product Safety Commission already has the authority to set fire safety standards for these products. Yet, despite overwhelming evidence that new standards would save lives, the Commission has been slow to address this issue. There are some who ask for more time for the Commission to work on this issue. More than 20 years have passed since the Commission has addressed product fire safety. There is no more time to waste.

We have taken great care to select standards that were developed with the best available science and broad input from scientists at NIST and ASTM, fire safety officials, industry and consumers. The Act explicitly asks the EPA to ensure that nothing done in the pursuit of fire safety would harm Americans in other ways. The standards in the Act will improve safety and over time will save many lives.

Companies have the technology right now to address fire safety in an economically responsible way. The number of lives we lose now to home fires can be dramatically reduced by the standards in this legislation. I ask for your support in making this a reality.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

S. 1798

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled,

SECTION 1. SHORT TITLE.

This Act may be cited as the "American Home Fire Safety Act".

SEC. 2. FINDINGS AND PURPOSES.

(a) FINDINGS.—Congress makes the following findings:

(1) There were 12,800 candle fires in 1998, resulting in 170 deaths, 1,200 civilian injuries, and $174,600,000 in property damage.

(2) In 1998, mattress and bedding fires caused 410 deaths, 2,260 civilian injuries, and $255,400,000 in property damage.

(3) The United States mattress industry has a long history of working closely with safety officials to reduce mattress flammability. For the past 25 years, mattresses have been subject to a Federal flammability standard that requires mattresses to resist ignition by smoldering cigarettes.

(4) Nevertheless, in 1998, fires involving mattresses and bedding accessories (which include pillows, comforters, and bedspreads) caused 410 deaths, 2,260 civilian injuries, and $255,400,000 in property damage.

(5) In many such fires, the bedding accessories are the first products to ignite. Such products have a material impact on the fire's intensity, duration, and the risk that the fire will spread beyond the room of origin.

(6) Upholstered furniture fires were responsible for 520 deaths in 1998, with little statistical change in the number of fires and deaths since 1994.

(7) While the fire death rates for upholstered furniture fires have dropped during the period 1982 through 1994 for both California and the entire Nation, death rates in California, which has stricter standards, have dropped by a larger percentage than the nation as a whole.

(8) Children, the elderly, and lower income families are at higher risk of death and injury from upholstered furniture fires caused primarily by the increasing incidents of children playing with matches, candles, lighters, or other small open flames.

(9) In view of the increased incidents of fire, it is important for Congress to establish fire safety standards for candles, mattresses, bed clothing, and upholstered furniture.

(10) The Consumer Product Safety Commission is the appropriate agency to develop and enforce such standards.

(11) The Environmental Protection Agency should continue to review and determine the suitability of any materials used to meet any fire safety standard established as a result of this Act.

(b) PURPOSES.—The purposes of this Act are—

(1) to protect the public against death and injury from fires associated with candles, mattresses, bed clothing, and upholstered furniture; and

(2) to require the Consumer Product Safety Commission to develop and issue comprehensive uniform safety standards to reduce the flammability of candles, mattresses, bed clothing, and upholstered furniture.

SEC. 3. CONSUMER PRODUCT FIRE SAFETY STANDARDS.

(a) IN GENERAL.—Within 90 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Consumer Product Safety Commission shall promulgate, as final consumer product safety standards under section 9 of the Consumer Product Safety Act (15 U.S.C. 2058), the following fire safety standards:

(1) UPHOLSTERED FURNITURE.—A fire safety standard for upholstered furniture that is substantially the same as the provisions of Technical Bulletin 117, "Requirements, Test Procedure and Apparatus for testing the Flame and Smolder Resistance of Upholstered Furniture" published by the State of California, Department of Consumer Affairs, Bureau of Home Furnishings and Thermal Insulation, February 2002.

(2) MATTRESSES.—A fire safety standard for mattresses that is substantially the same as Technical Bulletin 603, "Requirements and Test Procedure for Resistance of a Residential Mattress/Box Spring Set to a Large Open Flame", published by the State of California, Department of Consumer Affairs, Bureau of Home Furnishings and Thermal Insulation, February 2003.

(3) BEDCLOTHING.—A fire safety standard for bedclothing that is substantially the same as the October 22, 2003, draft for task force review of Technical Bulletin 604, "Test Procedure and Apparatus for the Flame Resistance of Filled Bedclothing", published by the State of California, Department of Consumer Affairs, Bureau of Home Furnishings and Thermal Insulation, October 2003.

(4) CANDLES.—A fire safety standard for candles that is substantially the same as Provisional Standard PS 59-02, "Provisional Specification for Fire Safety for Candles", ASTM International, as that provisional standard existed on the date of enactment of this Act.

(b) APPLICATION OF CERTAIN PROMULGATION REQUIREMENTS.—The requirements of subsections (a) through (f) of section 9 of the Consumer Product Safety Act (15 U.S.C. 2058), and section 36 of that Act (15 U.S.C. 2083), do not apply to the consumer product safety standards required to be promulgated by subsection (a) of this section.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise today in support of the American Home Fire Safety Act authored by my colleague Senator HOLLINGS. I am pleased to co-sponsor this legislation along with Senators GRAHAM of South Carolina, BREAUX, BOXER and DORGAN. While the purpose of our bill is to require the Consumer Product Safety Commission to implement national standards for mattresses, upholstered furniture, candles and bedding, our ultimate goal is to save lives.

According to the Consumer Products Safety Commission and the National Fire Protection Association, in 1998, the last year for which statistics are available, American homes suffered over 330,000 fires serious enough to require a response from firefighters. In those fires, more than 2,600 Americans died and another 15,000 suffered injuries requiring medical treatment. The property loss from those fires totaled over $3.5 billion.

Of the many items first ignited in residential fires, upholstered furniture is the product most frequently involved in fire deaths (20 percent) followed by mattresses and bedding (15 percent). Among the different forms of heat involved in the ignition of fires, smoking materials accounted for 30 percent of fire deaths with candles accounting for six percent of the fire deaths, followed by lighters at five percent and matches at three percent.

Effective fire protection depends on redundancy. Public education, building codes, smoke detectors, and automatic fire sprinklers each are important but imperfect tools where they exist—and too often they do not. The fact is that even with these tools available, more than 900 Americans—that's five of our fellow citizens every two days—die every year in fires involving cigarettes, small open flames such as candles, upholstered furniture, mattresses and bedding.

Those are the numbers—but there is a tragedy behind every one of them. Let me speak just for a moment about one such tragedy that visited my state one cold night in January of 2000. That night a young boy of six playing with a lighter ignited the sofa bed he was on and in the ensuing fire he and his two brothers—they were triplets—perished. But the tragedy doesn't stop there because one of the volunteer firefighters who responded that night, Waldo County Sheriff Robert Jones, suffered a fatal heart attack while fighting the blaze. No, Mr. President, this is not just about the numbers—although they are staggering—it is about the human tragedy.

The American Home Fire Safety Act will require the United States Consumer Product Safety Commission to enforce specific fire safety standards for each of these products. These are not new, burdensome standards—in fact, they are standards already established by the American Society of Testing and Materials or the state of California. American manufacturers of mattresses, upholstered furniture, candles and bedding have already developed cost-effective technology and processes to make these household goods less flammable than current products. Collectively—and in combination with existing fire protection technologies—we hope to save hundreds of lives, avoid thousands of serious injuries and billions of dollars in lost property.

Finally, I would like to point out that this legislation has been endorsed by the National Fire Protection Association, the National Volunteer Fire Council, the Western Fire Chiefs Association, the National Association of State Fire Marshals and numerous state Fire Chief's Associations. I urge my colleagues to support this bill to establish national standards for some of the household products at the core of residential fires. By doing so, perhaps we can spare our fellow Americans needless suffering.

By Mr. AKAKA (for himself, Mr. SARBANES, and Mr. CORZINE):

S. 1800. A bill to amend the Higher Education Act of 1965 to enhance literacy in finance and economics, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions.

Mr. AKAKA. Mr. President, today I am introducing the College Literacy in Finance and Economics or College LIFE Act. I would like to thank my colleagues, Senators SARBANES and CORZINE, for their cosponsorship of this important legislation.

The problem we're working to address with the College LIFE Act is simple. Our college students are many of America's best and the brightest. They hold the promise of our country in their hands and will go on to become leaders—in business, education, politics, the military, the community—any field you can name. It is wonderful that so many people are pursuing and fulfilling their dreams of higher education in numbers that I did not imagine when I was in college. In fact, as reported by the American Council on Education, total college enrollment surged by 3 million or nearly 27 percent over the past 20 years. However, I am gravely concerned, both as a member of this body and particularly as a grandparent and great-grandparent, that our young people are entering college without proper direction or good skills for money management or economic decisionmaking.

As we work on increasing access to higher education, we must give students access to the tools that they need to make sound economic and financial decisions once they are on campus. However, the lack of personal finance and economics State K-12 education standards or implementation of existing standards in K-12 education in a number of States results in many students arriving at college with little understanding of economic concepts like supply and demand or benefits versus costs, or personal finance concepts such as household money management or the importance of maintaining good credit history. Without this basic understanding, college students are not effectively evaluating credit alternatives, managing their debt, and preparing for long-term financial goals, such as saving for a home or retirement.

We can try to imagine what it's like to be a college student's shoes. A young adult leaves his home and travels thousands of miles, as do many Hawaii students attending mainland colleges, to the campus that holds his hopes and dreams. Perhaps farthest from his mind is how little spending money he has for textbooks, a new college sweatshirt, and school supplies. He gets to the campus bookstore and walks out with a bag that includes a preapproved credit card application, which he immediately fills out and mails. Months later, he has joined many other credit card-holding college student who, on average, have a credit card bill balance above $3,000. His sophomore year rolls around and, instead of conferring with his parents about the details of his renewal FAFSA for student financial aid or master promissory note, he is saddled with another $10,000 loan. According to The College Board, average college tuition and fees in 2003-04 increased to $19,710 for a four-year private institution and to $4,694 for a 4-year public institution. The same scenario repeats itself for his junior and senior years. Finally, after successfully completing all of his coursework, he graduates, finds an entry-level job, and realizes that, after servicing his debt, he has little money left for basics such as food, transportation, and rent, much less new career clothing or social outings. His lack of knowledge about how to properly use credit has led him to anxiety-causing financial missteps. With appropriate financial and economic literacy, he may have known what debt load to anticipate and made wiser financing and spending decisions while in school.

Rather, he may be on the road to true financial trouble. Dan Iannicola, Jr., Deputy Assistant Secretary of the Treasury for Financial Education, testified before a House subcommittee on Tuesday, that 40 percent of Americans say they live beyond their means, with the average American household having $8,900 in credit card debt in 2002—up from $3,200 just 10 years earlier. In 2001, more people filed for bankruptcy than graduated from college. Furthermore, the most recent Federal Reserve Bulletin reported that Americans currently pay 13.3 percent of after-tax income to service their debts, which increases to 18.1 percent when we add other recurring liabilities such as rent and auto leases. We must ensure that our youth make the right decisions to follow a better financial path, especially considering a report cited by Mr. Iannicola noting that youth spent more than $172 billion in a recent year, and figures from MarketResearch.com noting that typical 8- to 14-year-olds now spend—from allowances, jobs, and gifts—about $1,294 a year or $25 a week.

The College LIFE (Literacy in Finance and Economics) Act represents a comprehensive approach to assist upcoming generations of Americans. It proposes four new grant programs that provide resources to encourage experimentation with delivery systems—innovation methods used in or out of the classroom to increase college students' financial literacy. Another grant would allow higher education institutions to share best practices about or create personal finance courses where none exist. A third grant would assist efforts that are looking at the best ways to integrate personal finance and economic education into basic educational subjects, which is especially important as schools are facing challenges under the No Child Left Behind Act and are tempted to focus on subjects being tested for Annual Yearly Progress. The final grant would train teachers and high school counselors toward increasing financial and economic literacy in grades K-12 so that our college students are prepared when they arrive at college campuses.

The bill also proposes a pilot program for five higher education institutions to encourage students to take a personal finance course and participate in preventive annual credit counseling, working in conjunction with state or local public, private, and nonprofit entities selected by the local education agency or the school, and measuring the effectiveness of efforts in any behavioral changes that may result. It promotes greater collaboration with and support from Federal agencies in the higher education arena with respect to economic and financial literacy. Finally, it emphasizes the importance of personal finance and economic education and counseling by authorizing these activities as allowable uses in existing Higher Education Act programs, such as TRIO, GEAR UP, and Title III and Title V Serving Institutions.

Furthermore, I intend the reach of this bill to be beyond the traditional college student. Our returning college students are a vital part of society—many who are already community leaders and breadwinners for their families who have already gained valuable work experience that they may use as they learn a new field or continue their undergraduate study in the pursuit of a graduate or doctoral degree. In addition, older adults who are entering higher education for the first time can also be lauded for their enterprising spirit in wanting to better their lives by earning an associates or bachelors degree. I anticipate that the assistance provided through the College LIFE Act will work to provided needed help to many of these students as well.

I have been working on this bill over the better part of this year with several organizations in the higher education and economic and financial literacy community. I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD after my statement letters of support for the legislation from the National Council on Economic Education, JumpStart Coalition for Personal Financial Literacy, and Family, Career and Community Leaders of America. I thank these and other organizations for their constant efforts in this area. For example, the National Council for Community and Education Partnerships (NCCPEP) supports a provision including economic and financial literacy and counseling as allowable activities for the GEAR-UP program, which provides comprehensive mentoring, counseling, outreach, and supportive services to cohorts of disadvantaged students. Emphasis on economic and financial literacy as included in the bill would complement NCCPEP'S current GEAR-UP activities that underscore the importance of the college-going experience and pursuit of post-secondary education—including discussions about financial aid, debt, grants vs. loans, savings, and tax credits—and involving parents or guardians to inform them on the costs of college and how to prepare for their child's entry into college. I will continue to work with these and other organizations toward increasing literacy in finance and economics for our students before they enter higher education and once they arrive on college campuses.

I am looking forward to continuing to work with my colleagues to have the College LIFE Act passed or included in the upcoming Higher Education Act reauthorization. I encourage my colleagues' support for this bill.

I ask unanimous consent that the bill be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the Material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

NATIONAL COUNCIL ON ECONOMIC EDUCATION,
Washington, DC, October 1, 2003.

Hon. DANIEL K. AKAKA,
U.S. Senator,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR AKAKA: For over 50 years, the National Council on Economic Education (NCEE), through its nationwide network of State Councils and University Centers for Economic Education, has been the nation's premier organization for promoting effective economic education, by training teachers to get basic economic knowledge and decision-making skills into the heads and hands of our young people, K-12.

NCEE's mission is to ensure the effective teaching of the real-life skills people need to succeed in an increasingly complex world: to be able to think and choose knowledgeably as consumers, savers, and investors, responsible citizens, members of the workforce, and effective participants in the global economy.

Because of our nationwide university and college base, we at the National Council on Economic Education (NCEE) strongly endorse the College LIFE (Literacy in Finance and Economics) Act.

The College LIFE (Literacy in Finance and Economics) Act, which seeks to provide university students with personal finance counseling, and to prepare teachers and high school counselors to equip our young people with personal finance knowledge and skills, could not come at a better time.

This is a time of growing public interest in personal finance education. Parents everywhere want their children to know how the world works before they go to work in it, and to possess the basic knowledge and decision-making skills that will help them to become productive and responsible citizens, employees, consumers, savers and investors. Any legislation that advances that effort in a sustained, systematic way has our support.

The NCEE is pleased to support the College LIFE (Literacy in Finance and Economics) Act. Please keep us informed of its progress.

Yours sincerely,

ROBERT F. DUVALL,
President & Chief Executive Officer.

JUMPSTART COALITION,
Washington, DC, October 9, 2003.

Senator DANIEL K. AKAKA,
Hart Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR AKAKA: On behalf of the JumpStart Coalition for Personal Financial Literacy (a coalition of 150 organizations promoting personal finance education for youth), we thank you for sponsoring the College Literacy in Finance and Economics (College LIFE) Act.

The passage of this Act would signify an elevation in importance of the issue of youth financial literacy by Higher Education. The problems related to financially illiterate young adults need to be addressed. We cannot continue the ten-fold increase in young adults filing bankruptcy that we have seen in the past five years. Nor can we afford to have young adults dropping out of college due to heavy credit card debt or not understanding the importance of investing for their retirement.

In light of these distressing problems, it is imperative that we start to embed personal finance and economic education more widely into our college and university curricula. Currently the percentage of college students having the opportunity to enroll in such classes is small considering their lack of promotion and availability.

The good news is that education is the answer and the solution is found through existing resources. A wide selection of curricula (many free or low cost) in addition to teacher training networks and guest speaker supplements are available. The remaining obstacle lies in opening the doors of Higher Education to this invaluable instruction.

Therefore, JumpStart wholeheartedly supports Senator Akaka's College LIFE Act for its emphasis on a subject and skill that is invaluable to surviving in today's complex financial marketplace.

The JumpStart Coalition thanks you for your continuing support of financial and economic education.

Sincerely,

DARA DUGUAY,
Executive Director.

FAMILY, CAREER AND COMMUNITY LEADERS OF AMERICA,
Reston, VA, October 29, 2003.

Senator DANIEL K. AKAKA,
Hart Senate Office Building,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SENATOR AKAKA, Family, Career and Community Leaders of America is a dynamic and effective national student organization with a membership of over 227,000 that helps young men and women become leaders and address important personal, family, work, and societal issues through Family and Consumer Sciences Education (FACS). One of those important issues is financial responsibility, which is a part of the FACS discipline.

FCCLA Advisers are FACS teachers who use the FCCLA Financial Fitness national peer education program to promote youth teaching other young people how to make, save, and spend money wisely. Its goals are to sharpen young people's skills in money management, consumerism, and financial planning; as well as provide youth an opportunity to teach others and develop financial literacy, communication, and leadership skills. This program includes educational tools and recognition for chapter projects.

We strongly support the College LIFE (Literacy in Finance and Economics) Act, as it shares the goals of the FCCLA Financial Fitness program. The importance of consumer education that FCCLA introduces to its youth will be able to be carried on to higher education with the passage of this Act. Skills learned through personal finance and economic education courses will better prepare students for success in their careers and their lives.

FCCLA is grateful to you for your enduring advocacy of financial and economic education through the College LIFE Act.

Sincerely,

ALAN T. RAINS, Jr.,
Executive Director.

SEC. 6. EVALUATION.

Not later than 6 years after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General of the United States shall submit to the Committee on Health, Education, Labor, and Pensions of the Senate, the Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs of the Senate, the Committee on Education and the Workforce of the House of Representatives, and the Committee on Financial Services of the House of Representatives, an evaluation of the range and effectiveness of financial and economic education and financial aid counseling activities of institutions of higher education, lenders, servicers, and guaranty agencies as emphasized by the Secretary of Education pursuant to section 123 of the Higher Education Act of 1965.

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, I am proud to join Senator AKAKA as a co-sponsor of the College LIFE (Literacy in Finance and Economics) Act.

Unfortunately, when it comes to personal finances, most American college students do not have the skills they need to spend and save wisely. Most do not understand the details of managing a checking account, paying their taxes, or even using a credit card sensibly. College students must be given the tools they need to maintain good credit and make informed decisions about investments and savings so that they can ensure themselves a successful future.

The importance of financial education cannot be understated, and this bill effectively addresses this critical issue by establishing grants that would allow institutions of higher education to provide their students with personal finance counseling and planning services. The bill also contains provisions that would encourage colleges to develop personal finance courses, giving students greater access to financial education. Finally, the bill would create a three-year pilot program in five institutions of higher education across the Nation to provide annual counseling for financial aid recipients.

Financial literacy has been a priority of mine since the start of my tenure in the U.S. Senate. Indeed, I believe that financial literacy should be a lifelong goal. Last Congress, I successfully added a provision to the No Child Left Behind Act to give elementary and secondary schools access to funds that will allow them to include financial education as part of their basic educational curriculum. This Congress, I have introduced the Education for Retirement Security Act of 2003, which would provide grants to non-profit organizations and State and local agencies for programs that would enhance financial and retirement knowledge for America's seniors. The bill also aims to reduce financial abuse and fraud, including telemarketing, mortgage, and pension fraud. Finally, I am the sponsor of a bill that would provide welfare recipients with greater access to financial literacy skills in order to help them achieve self-sufficiency.

I know that Senator AKAKA has a deep interest in this issue as well, and I am honored to join him in introducing the College LIFE Act, to ensure that college students have access to the financial knowledge that they need to make the right decisions about their futures.

By Mrs. MURRAY (for herself, Mr. CORZINE, Mr. SCHUMER, and Mr. DAYTON):

SEC. 2. FINDINGS.

Congress makes the following findings:

(1) Domestic violence crimes account for approximately 15 percent of total crime costs in the United States each year.

(2) Violence against women has been reported to be the leading cause of physical injury to women. Such violence has a devastating impact on women's physical and emotional health and financial security.

(3) According to a recent National Institutes of Health-Centers for Disease Control and Prevention study, each year there are 5,300,000 non-fatal violent victimizations committed by intimate partners against women. Female murder victims were substantially more likely than male murder victims to have been killed by an intimate partner. About 1/3 of female murder victims, and about 4 percent of male murder victims, were killed by an intimate partner.

(4) According to recent government estimates, approximately 987,400 rapes occur annually in the United States, 89 percent of the rapes perpetrated against female victims. Since 2001, rapes have actually increased by 4 percent.

(5) Approximately 10,200,000 people have been stalked at some time in their lives. Four out of every 5 stalking victims are women. Stalkers harass and terrorize their victims by spying on the victims, standing outside their places of work or homes, making unwanted phone calls, sending or leaving unwanted letters or items, or vandalizing property.

(6) Employees in the United States who have been victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, or stalking too often suffer adverse consequences in the workplace as a result of their victimization.

(7) Victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, and stalking are particularly vulnerable to changes in employment, pay, and benefits as a result of their victimizations, and are, therefore, in need of legal protection.

(8) The prevalence of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, stalking, and other violence against women at work is dramatic. About 36,500 individuals, 80 percent of whom are women, were raped or sexually assaulted in the workplace each year from 1993 through 1999. Half of all female victims of violent workplace crimes know their attackers. Nearly 1 out of 10 violent workplace incidents are committed by partners or spouses. Women who work for State and local governments suffer a higher incidence of workplace assaults, including rapes, than women who work in the private sector.

(9) Homicide is the leading cause of death for women on the job. Husbands, boyfriends, and ex-partners commit 15 percent of workplace homicides against women.

(10) Studies indicate that between 35 and 56 percent of employed battered women surveyed were harassed at work by their abusive partners.

(11) According to a 1998 report of the General Accounting Office, between 1/4 and 1/2 of domestic violence victims surveyed in 3 studies reported that the victims lost a job due, at least in part, to domestic violence.

(12) Women who have experienced domestic violence or dating violence are more likely than other women to be unemployed, to suffer from health problems that can affect employability and job performance, to report lower personal income, and to rely on welfare.

(13) Abusers frequently seek to control their partners by actively interfering with their ability to work, including preventing their partners from going to work, harassing their partners at work, limiting the access of their partners to cash or transportation, and sabotaging the child care arrangements of their partners.

(14) More than 1/2 of women receiving welfare have been victims of domestic violence as adults and between 1/4 and 1/3 reported being abused in the last year.

(15) Victims of intimate partner violence lose 8,000,000 days of paid work each year—the equivalent of over 32,000 full-time jobs and 5,600,000 days of household productivity.

(16) Sexual assault, whether occurring in or out of the workplace, can impair an employee's work performance, require time away from work, and undermine the employee's ability to maintain a job. Almost 50 percent of sexual assault survivors lose their jobs or are forced to quit in the aftermath of the assaults.

(17) More than 35 percent of stalking victims report losing time from work due to the stalking and 7 percent never return to work.

(18)(A) According to the National Institute of Justice, crime costs an estimated $450,000,000 annually in medical expenses, lost earnings, social service costs, pain, suffering, and reduced quality of life for victims, which harms the Nation's productivity and drains the Nation's resources.

(B) Violent crime accounts for $426,000,000 per year of this amount.

(C) Rape exacts the highest costs per victim of any criminal offense, and accounts for $127,000,000 per year of the amount described in subparagraph (A).

(19) Violent crime results in wage losses equivalent to 1 percent of all United States earnings, and causes 3 percent of the Nation's medical spending and 14 percent of the Nation's injury-related medical spending.

(20) The Bureau of National Affairs has estimated that domestic violence costs United States employers between $3,000,000,000 and $5,000,000,000 annually in lost time and productivity, while other reports have estimated the cost at between $5,800,000,000 and $13,000,000,000 annually.

(21) United States medical costs for domestic violence have been estimated to be $31,000,000,000 per year.

(22) Surveys of business executives and corporate security directors also underscore the heavy toll that workplace violence takes on women, businesses, and interstate commerce in the United States.

(23) Ninety-four percent of corporate security and safety directors at companies nationwide rank domestic violence as a high security concern.

(24) Forty-nine percent of senior executives recently surveyed said domestic violence has a harmful effect on their company's productivity, 47 percent said domestic violence negatively affects attendance, and 44 percent said domestic violence increases health care costs.

(25) Only 25 States have laws that explicitly provide unemployment insurance to domestic violence victims in certain circumstances, and none of the laws explicitly cover victims of sexual assault or stalking.

(26) Only 6 States provide domestic violence victims with leave from work to go to court, to the doctor, or to take other steps to address the domestic violence in their lives, and only Maine provides such leave to victims of sexual assault and stalking.

(27) No States prohibit employment discrimination against victims of domestic violence, sexual assault, or stalking. Five States provide limited protection to some victims under certain circumstances.

(28) Employees, including individuals participating in welfare to work programs, may need to take time during business hours to—

(A) obtain orders of protection;

(B) seek medical or legal assistance, counseling, or other services; or

(C) look for housing in order to escape from domestic violence.

(29) Domestic and sexual violence victims have been subjected to discrimination by private and State employers, including discrimination motivated by sex and stereotypic notions about women.

(30) Domestic violence victims and third parties who help them have been subjected to discriminatory practices by health, life, disability, and property and casualty insurers and employers who self-insure employee benefits who have denied or canceled coverage, rejected claims, and raised rates based on domestic violence. Although some State legislatures have tried to address these problems, the scope of protection afforded by the laws adopted varies from State to State, with many failing to address the problem comprehensively. Moreover, Federal law prevents States from protecting the almost 40 percent of employees whose employers self-insure employee benefits.

(31) Existing Federal law does not explicitly—

(A) authorize victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, or stalking to take leave from work to seek legal assistance and redress, counseling, or assistance with safety planning activities;

(B) address the eligibility of victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, or stalking for unemployment compensation;

(C) prohibit employment discrimination against actual or perceived victims of domestic violence, dating violence, sexual assault, or stalking; or

(D) prohibit insurers and employers who self-insure employee benefits from discriminating against domestic violence victims and those who help them in determining eligibility, rates charged, and standards for payment of claims; nor does it prohibit insurers from disclosure of information about abuse and the victim's location through insurance databases and other means.

By Mr. ENZI:

S. 1803. A bill to expand the applicability of daylight saving time; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. ENZI. Mr. President, this Friday, October 31, families all over America will be celebrating a special holiday that has become a family tradition. On that day, our children will be dressing up as their favorite characters and clowns and heading down the street to scour the neighborhood in search of their favorite candies and sweets. As each group of witches, goblins and ghouls patrols the neighborhood, the cries of "Trick or Treat" will be heard everywhere along with the shouts of joy and excitement from each participant as they bring home a bag full of all sorts of candy to share with the whole family.

Although it is a great holiday, there has always been one great concern about it—the safety of our children. It is a concern that stems from the time change that occurs the weekend before Halloween. Unfortunately, when Congress passed legislation authorizing the use of daylight saving time, we drew the lines one week short of Halloween. Instead of including it in the time change boundaries, Congress drew the finish line for daylight saving time one week short, so that it ended the weekend before, instead of after the night so many of our children will be out walking the streets of their neighborhood in pursuit of their favorite holiday treats.

That is why I am pleased to introduce the Halloween Safety Act of 2003. Its purpose is to extend the end date of daylight saving time from the last Sunday in October to the first Sunday in November. This simple, but important, change will ensure that the protections of daylight saving time extend through Halloween.

The idea of extending daylight saving time was introduced to me by Sharon Rasmussen, a second grade teacher from Sheridan, WY and her students. Twelve years ago Mrs. Rasmussen's class began writing to Wyoming's representatives expressing their wish to have an extra hour of daylight on Halloween to ensure the safety of small children. Each year since then I have received a packet of letters from Mrs. Rasmussen's class encouraging my support for this reasonable proposal.

Legislation has been introduced in the past to extend daylight saving time. Although many of the bills sought to change both the starting date and the ending date, the legislation I introduced today would simply extend it for one week.

The reason why such a change needs to be made is readily apparent. According to the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety, over four thousand eight hundred people died in 2001, that is an average of 13 deaths per day. Fatal pedestrian-motor vehicle collisions occur most often between 6 and 9 p.m. Unfortunately, these general trends are highly magnified on Halloween given the considerable increase in pedestrians, most of whom are children. A study by the National Center for Injury Prevention and Control concluded that the occurrence of pedestrian deaths for children ages 5 to 14 is four times higher on Halloween than any other night of the year. School and communities encourage children and parents to use safety measures when children venture out on Halloween and the Halloween Safety Act can further help protect our nation's youth.

When students take an interest in improving our Nation's laws, especially when it would serve to protect other children, I believe it is our duty to pay close attention to their needs and respond if possible. If children concerned about their own safety suggest a reasonable approach to making their world a little bit safer, I believe that accommodating their request is not too much to ask. The fact that second and third grade students in Sheridan, WY have been working on this legislation for years shows that protecting the children of our country is a primary concern of theirs, and it should be for all of us as lawmakers. If one life can be saved or one accident avoided by extending Daylight Saving Time, it would be worthwhile.

I encourage all my colleagues to support this act for the important benefits the Halloween Safety Act of 2003 would have for children and their parents.

By Mr. BREAUX (for himself, Mr. LOTT, and Mr. HOLLINGS):

S. 1804. A bill to reauthorize programs relating to sport fishing and recreational boating safety, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation.

Mr. BREAUX. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce the Sport Fishing Restoration and Boating Safety Act of 2003. The legislation, cosponsored by Senator LOTT and Senator HOLLINGS is funded through the Aquatic Resources Trust fund, which I am honored to know is commonly referred to as the Wallop-Breaux Trust Fund (Wallop-Breaux). This bill reauthorizes activities funded by two of the Nation's most effective "user-pay, user-benefit" programs—the Sport Fish Restoration Fund and the Recreational Boating Safety Fund—which constitute the "Wallop-Breaux" program.

In 1984, when I was a member of the House of Representatives, I had the privilege of sponsoring, along with then Senator Malcolm Wallop, what I consider to be the most significant legislation for anglers and boaters to have passed the Congress. We guided through the House and Senate legislation that greatly increased funds for fishery and boating and related programs in virtually every State of our Nation. In 1985, the first year that the Wallop-Breaux amendments were effective, their impact caused the funding for fishing and boating programs to increase from approximately $35 million to $100 million. Funded by a Federal manufacturers' excise taxes on fishing equipment and a percentage of the Federal fuel tax attributed to use in motor boats and small engines, Wallop-Breaux will this year alone provide to the States approximately $450 million to the greatest of outdoor recreations—fishing and boating. It is sometimes difficult to fathom, but over the past nineteen years, Wallop-Breaux has disbursed upwards of $5 billion to the States to improve recreational boating and fishing, promote conservation, protect the environment and to conserve wetlands.

As my colleagues know, Wallop-Breaux and other important programs funded through the Highway Trust Fund received a five-month extension, awaiting consideration of full term reauthorization. Over the last two years, I have met with the American League of Anglers and Boaters (ALAB), the constituent group comprised of 34 organizations representing the spectrum of fishing and boating interests. The purpose of these meetings has been to prepare for introduction of this reauthorization legislation. I am pleased to report that ALAB support the legislation I bring before you today.

Foremost on everyone's agenda was the need to secure a stable and predictable funding base for boating safety grants to the states. The challenge was to increase the funding and dependability of delivery of boating safety grants to the States.

I pledged my support to these Wallop-Breaux constituent groups to enact improvements to the overall program. After countless meetings and considerable deliberation, I am pleased to report that the legislation I am introducing today reflects a general consensus on improving Wallop-Breaux to the benefit of all stakeholders. I want to stress that this would not have been possible without the leadership of Senator LOTT, Senator HOLLINGS and other key members of the committees having joint-jurisdiction over Wallop-Breaux programs. Under the legislation, Boating Safety Grants will now have guaranteed and increased funding. This program will now receive 18 percent of the total Wallop-Breaux, increasing present funding from $64 million to $95 million in the first year of enactment.

The legislation also dissolves the Boat Safety account. The balance currently in the account plus the interest, approximately $87 million, will be distributed over the next five years to accounts in the fund.

State boat safety grants will now have a 3 to 1 match, the same as the Sport Fish Restoration grants, enabling state funds to go farther by reimbursing them 75 cents for every Federal dollar.

And lastly, all programs funded through Wallop-Breaux will be assigned a percentage of the total fund to allow a simpler and fairer process. When the amount of funds increase or decrease so will all of the programs based upon their percentage.

The growing popularity of recreational boating and fishing has created safety, environmental, and access needs that have been successfully addressed by the two Wallop-Breaux programs—Recreational Boating Safety and Sport Fish Restoration. The reauthorization is important for the safety of boaters, the continued enjoyment of fishermen, and improvement of our wetlands and waterways.

This reauthorization will allow continued funding of programs that benefit boating safety, coastal wetland protection and restoration and sportfish restoration, as well as Clean Vessel Act grants that help to keep our waterways clean.

I appreciate the opportunity to discuss the positive impact of Wallop-Breaux programs in years past, as well as presenting significant improvements contained in the legislation that I am introducing today. I ask that my colleagues join Senator LOTT, Senator HOLLINGS and me in cosponsoring this landmark legislation.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the bill be printed in the RECORD.
